Aud: "I'm a very firm believer, because, ah, I pretty much believe that aliens have been visiting this planet for like longer than humans have been around of course, you know? But ..."

AB: "Why do believe that? What evidence do you see?"

Aud: "Well, kinda like the abductions that we have, ah, evidence of recently and, you know, people sayin', ah ... ah, aliens are always, ah, tampering with their genitals and such.

Who knows what kind of experiments, you know, they have been performing in their labs or whatever?"

AB: "It's true."

Aud: "I mean, it's just like, ah, ten million years (10,000,000 yrs.) from like a horse to get from the size of a dog to the size it is now. And you know, just throwin' some figures around, like two million years (2,000,000 yrs.) for the human to evolve from ..."

AB: "Yes, but I'm not sure ..."

Aud: "... from homo erectus to where we are now."

AB: "Yes indeed! But I'm not sure that our, ah, evolution is evidence of extraterrestrial visitation at all. I'm just not sure (!)

Ah, if you meant to ask whether I believe?

Um, no, I wouldn't say I believe.

I would say I continue to investigate it, but I have seen, ah, even ... even the Roswell, ah, footage supposed (sigh for a second). I really haven't seen anything that would cause me to say: 'I believe.'

So that's your answer. Even though I'm sure a lot of people out there have other ideas. Even though I investigate intensely things in this area.

Do I believe as an article of faith we're being visited? No, I don't.

Does that surprise you?

Any more than I would say I believe or have faith in other things that I cannot put my hand on ... yet!"

Open Lines – Detroit Tragedy/
40 Ways To Destroy Earth

Aud: "Say, ah, I was listening to you the other night and a gentleman called and asked if you believed that, ah, aliens had anything to do with our evolution."

AB: "Hmm."

Aud: "And, ah, you commented that, ah ..."

AB: "I said: 'I don't know.'"

Aud: "Well, I was just wondering if you, ah, believe in your personal opinion if they've had, ah, in the past, you know, far past, they've had any, ah, manipulation on our progress?"

AB: "Beats the hell outta me.

I said: 'I don't know.' I meant: 'I don't know.'

I have no proof of it. I have people who come on and talk to me – all kinds of guests with all kinds of credentials who say all kinds of things.

Um, do you ... now ... now maybe you can help me out here, sir – ah, do you have proof?"

Aud: "Well, I don't have, ah ..."

AB: "No?"

Aud: "... tangible proof, but ..."

AB: "Damn!"

Aud: "... I've been, ah, ..."

AB: "Okay ..."

Aud: "... doin' a lot of reading about like, ah, Mayan calendars that go four hundred million (400,000,000) years into the future.

Um, they have, ah, astronomical [sic], um, maps.”

AB: “Yeah.”

Aud: “They have, ah ...”

AB: “Yeah, and we’ve got the Bible too.”

Aud: “Yeah. Well, and they also calculated thousands of years ago, ah, the rotation of the Moon, which today if they calculated, they’d differ by like probably four (4) seconds.”

AB: “I’ve got books that could convince you about anything if you wanta read ‘em.

Ah, but you know until I can put my hand on it ... until I see scientific proof one way or the other, ah, my answer remains: ‘I don’t know.’”

Aud: [via fax] “‘Having been a citizen of this planet, and for a sizable length of time, it amazes me how a species could be so intelligent, yet so narrow-minded with regard to visitors from other planets. Most Earthlings (including yourself) assume that for interstellar travel, the aliens must be of superior intelligence.

Is it not possible that although more advanced in travel techniques, they might be far behind in other areas of knowledge. For instance, you are by far the best late-nite talk show host, but not have the intelligence to become a great politician or a psychiatrist.

Just a little late nite snack to ponder on.

Keep up the good work.”

AB: “Well, number one (1): I’m smart enough to know that. I don’t want to be a psychiatrist and I certainly don’t want to be a politician. And I’m very pleased doing what I’m doing.

There is the Peter Principle, and I do not want to ascend to it. And that is that somebody will eventually be, ah, promoted beyond their level of competence ... to a job for which they are not suited, fitted, nor competent.

Ah, I have no illusions about, ah, wanting some greater, ah, position – I enjoy doing precisely what I am doing and wouldn’t change it for the world!

And have fought not to as a matter of fact.

AB: "Well, I don't know, it's just one of those dumb things to consider.

It's eminently possible isn't it if there are aliens, who's to say their reproductive systems mimic ours?

Who's to say they even have different sexes?

So, what if it was just one sex?

We couldn't handle that, could we? We'd prob'ly be at war! ... shooting them down!

(AB laughs). Ahh, that's nighttime radio."

FMM: "You know, there are two (2) things that are very frightening for a human being. The first is to be in a land he doesn't or she doesn't know. Totally alien."

AB: "Yes."

FMM: "But one of the most, ah, disturbing things is to be ... is to be persuaded that there's an alien being you don't know now in your presence or in your area."

AB: "That would do it!"

FMM: "It's very disturbing, because that arouses up the good ol' territorial imperative, [unintelligible] we used to call it. But it also rouses up this fear of the alien – we don't like what is alien. We must know it!"

* * *

Aud: "Suppose there were, ah, [an] extraterrestrial visit to the Earth that was ..."

FMM: "Yes?"

Aud: "... that was so dramatic that it couldn't be denied."

FMM: "Yes?"

Aud: "How should Christians feel? Afraid or ... ?"

FMM: “No ... no! And, ah ... I must – I invoke a privilege here – um, ah, let ... how will I put this?”

It is, um ... ah, dangerous for the mind to pursue the whole idea of ... of beings on another planet ... is, ah, dangerous to the mind for the moment, because we haven't ... we haven't got any, um, physical basis for it (!)

Really, nothing concrete.”

Aud: “Art, I don't know if anyone has ever mentioned this, but I was petting my cat the other day. She likes to have her head fully covered by your hand. (A lot of cats like that, I know). And when I smooth down her face and ears toward the back of her head, I noticed the general face shape and structure is very similar to many depictions of grey aliens. Has anyone ever commented on this?”

Try this with one of your cats. Put one hand on either side of their face, smoothing the fur and the ears back. Voila! You've got something that looks exactly like an alien.

Could this be why the ancients ... the Egyptians revered and worshiped cats?

Were they given to us as a reminder or perhaps as watchers for us?”
